APPEAL FROM THE COLORED PEOPLE. To the Citizens of Memphis at Home and Abroad For reasons heretofore recited, we have found it necessary to undertake the work of providing for ourselves, in a way that seemed most practical and efficient, by organizing a colored citizens' relief association. circumstances have hitherto stood in the way of our making an appeal to you, but we now that no sense of delicacy or diffidence should any longer deter us from asking you to consider our case, put yourselves in our place, and act according to the promptings of your most generous impulses. Our peolength and breadth thereof, some sick with the yellow fever and other diseases, but the greater number is robust health, but suffering from a condition of poverty more disastrous in its ultimate results than even the much dreaded epidemic, producing, as it unavoidably does, starvation with all its attendant horrors, more terrible in their protracted torture than death itself. These people are our wards, the proper objects of our care, and in their behalf we address you. We are aware that several of our citiz ns have contributed to the aid of the poor refugees in the few camps which have been established in the vicinity of the city. While this insures subsistence and immunity from starvation to the denizens of those camps, not numbering more than thirteen hunored men, women and children all told, it holds out to the sixteen thousand or more who remain in the city. and never will go to the camps, no hope relief from starvation and death, which wil certainly be their portion if they do not receive assistance from those who have means. Are you willing, under these circumstances to help us? If you feel that it is your duty to do so, we ask you to forward whatever relief association, No. 353 Second street, upstairs, Memphis, Tennessee

The doctor had nothing more to say that has not already been said in the papers. WHAT IS A FOMITE? The New Orleans Times thus discusses the fomite, spore, mote, molecule or ultimate atom which is said to be the yellow-fever the North German Issurance Co. will be refiend: "Out of this fomite which casts no shadow, and has no more substance than the standard to be the yellow love in the said to be the yellow love in the yellow love in the said to be the yellow love in the yellow love in the said to be the yellow love in t THERE is no better remedy than Reed's gilt fabric of a vision, the whole world by mutual consent has put on a mad-cap and gone crazy. We are told the germs or spores of fomites travel; that they may be carried about in leather or prunella, in groceries, hardware and we have unreasonable quarantines, State and National; learned commissioners to visit and sit on the subject; country people stand at arms on the highways—and all this to keep away fomites, which have no existence. Though this theory of fomites may have some material and tangible fact to rest on, it is throwing the moral world off its hinges. We are getting to be no better off than when the quaranta (forty days) was first established in Italy. Are we common people, who are content to sport on the margin of science, to stand still and say nothing against the empiricism of the age? Are we to believe that the old court of our friend is full of spores— a thing to be haudled with tongs or punched out of sight with a poker? When he knocks at our door, shall we exclaim, 'Who's there? and fumigate him over a cauldron of carbolic before allowing him to come in? Perish the thought!"

WASHING YOUR HEAD A PREVENTIVE. A distinguished physician who had spent much time at quarantine said that a person whose head was thoroughly washed every day rarely took contagious diseases, but when the bair was allowed to become dirty and matted, it was hardly possible to escape infection. Many persons find speedy relief for nervous headache by washing the ha thoroughly in weak soda water. I have known severe cases almost wholly cured in ten minutes by this simple remedy. A friend finds the greatest relief in cases of 'rare cold.' the cold symptoms entirely leaving th eye and nose after one thorough washing of the hair. The head should be thoroughly dried afterward, and avoid draughts of air for a little while.
